'New Perspectives on Connoisseurship' | An Open Discussion

On November 9th at 2pm Lyon & Turnbull are thrilled to host 'New Perspectives on Connoisseurship' an open discussion with the Antiques Trade Gazette as part of our Asian Art in London programme.

Roger Keverne | Specialist dealer in Chinese Ceramics

Dr. Peter Northover | Metallurgy & Archaeology, University of Oxford (ret.)

Pamela Kember | Head of Arts & Learning at Asia House

Taking place in our exhibition space at Tomasso Brothers Fine Art, on Duke Street, St James, the debate will explore the impact that recent scientific developments in the ageing and authenticating of materials have made on the Chinese art collectors' market. The subject matter is inspired by the recent article 'When Technology Meets Connoisseurship' that featured in Asian Art, the new annual supplement by the Antiques Trade Gazette. The discussion will be chaired by journalist and art writer, Ivan MacQuisten.

"The need for fool-proof scientific testing methods has never been greater, and these new methods work in tandem with connoisseurship and specialist knowledge to create the higher level of confidence that this field now demands if it is to continue to prosper."

There are very limited spaces still available. Please enquire at londonevents@lyonandturnbull.com or call +44(0)207 9309115

Please note: This is a standing event
